HILL, James Edward, 1893- Lerna, Ill., native. Univ. CUT from Ill. B.S., 1916; M.S., 1923. In Illinois: taught ag., Hall township high school, Spring Valley, 1918-1919; Asst. St. Sup. Ag. Ed., 1919-1922; Assoc. in Ag. Ed., Univ. glossy print of 1922-1924; State Supervisor, 1924- Long has operated a large and successful farm business, specializing in purefavorite photo. bred livestock and hybrid seed corn. Led in developing ***** sectional fairs and judging contests, thus enabling voc. ag. students to exhibit their products and to test their abilities. Helped make the Future Farmers of America a worthy national organization. Able in such matters of public concern. mangern. Director of Voc. Ed. in Ill. for a time. But his first lifetime interest has been the establishment of voc. ag. ed. in the schools of Illinois. Result: one of the most extensive of the State programs. Throughout, he has stood for democratic principles, for clear thinking, and for practical action. And by sharing his responsibilities to an unusual extent with the teachers and teacher-trainers of his State, he has won the respect and unswerving loyalty of his co-workers. An exemplary administrator, whose guidance and good influence have been potent beyond the confines of his own Commonwealth. -- J. H. Pearson and H. M. Hamlin.
