Holder of many other honorary degrees and decorations. Widely traveled, at home and abroad, student of education and affairs. Dedicating his "State School Administration" to him as a kindred spirit, Dean Cumberley characterized him as "administrator, scholar, teacher, friend." Known, admired, and respected, near and far, he understood our philosophy and the province of education in vocational agriculture; and he gave his Agricultural Bureau Education Bureau ~~xxxxxx~~ associates in the New York State Education Department inspiring and loyal support. Fuller details in J. Cayce Morrison article, ~~xxxxxx~~ above pp. . -- R. W. Stimson.

Writing me 13 November 1946, Dr. J. Cayce Morrison, Assistant Commissioner for Research, State Education Department, New York, said: "Dr. Graves' contribution to agricultural education in this State merits the highest rating on any honor roll."
